IVP Academic publishes books that facilitate meaningful conversations across the academy and the church. We partner with leaders at colleges and universities to provide thoughtful resources for engaging with the Christian faith and its world-changing implications.

OUR HISTORY

IVP Academic is the academic imprint of InterVarsity Press, the publishing branch of InterVarsity Christian Fellowship. As an affiliate of this campus ministry, we have been publishing for students, professors, scholars, and church leaders for over seventy years.

Although our breadth of authors and offerings has expanded, we maintain the same evangelical commitment to education and transformation. We publish across a wide range of disciplines beyond theology and biblical studies, including strong programs in psychology, philosophy, and missiology, with additional resources in history, business, economics, science, and apologetics.

Dear Reader,

“Daddy, how do you spell survive?”

My daughter was working on a school project, and all she wanted to know was how to spell the word (literally). But her question immediately struck me as representative of what we’re all wondering in this time of pandemic and unresolved tension, amid the uneven hollowing out of prosperity and the shredding of norms.

For all too many, of course, this year has been a literal life-or-death struggle, and as I’m sure is true for you, we have lost friends this year to Covid: authors, readers, family members, neighbors. In whatever ways we can, I hope we are mourning such losses, remembering the joys of our friendships, and honoring the contributions of the departed, even seeking to build upon them. I’m sadly aware that the losses most likely aren’t yet ended.

But my daughter’s question also made me realize that what we really want to know how to spell (figuratively) is thrive. Although it has sometimes seemed paradoxical, if your experience is anything like mine, this year has also brought insights on the good life as well as moments of delight and patterns of replenishment that constitute just as much the legacy of 2020 as its lamentations. I think we’ve all learned how great sweatpants are, and perhaps their social acceptability will persist when all this is over?

The books you’ll find in this catalog definitely fall under that heading of “delights” for us here at IVP Academic. Collaborating with these authors to bring you these books has been a good and encouraging labor for us editors, designers, marketers, and the whole team. Whether in theology or biblical studies, history or psychology, these titles have marked the year for us with bright spots and revelations and deposits of solidarity toward the work we still have cut out for us all.

With gratitude to our good Lord, we pray you’ll find them to be such sources of joy and courage too.

The Book of Romans as a Treatise on Justice

The theme of justice pervades the Bible from Genesis to Revelation. And all Christians agree that justice is important. We often disagree, however, about what justice means, both in Scripture and for us today. Readers frequently miss a key source, a writing in which justice is actually the central concern: the book of Romans.

In Resurrecting Justice, theologian Douglas Harink invites readers to rediscover Romans as a treatise on justice. He traces Paul's thinking on this theme through a sequential reading of the book, finding in each passage facets of the gospel's primary claim—that God accomplishes justice in the death and resurrection of Jesus Messiah. By rendering forms of the Greek word dikaïosynē as “just” or “justice,” Harink emphasizes the inseparability of personal, social, and political uprightness that was clear to Paul but is obscured in modern translations' use of the words “righteous” and “righteousness” instead.

Harink includes personal reflection questions and contemporary implications, helping readers connect Paul's teaching to issues in their world such as church life, politics, power, criminal justice, and violence. In Romans the life, death, resurrection, and exaltation of Jesus makes all the difference in how we think about justice.

“I recommend this book in the strongest possible terms. Douglas Harink is a biblical theologian precisely positioned to expound the way in which the letters of Paul the Apostle speak to our present global moment.”

The Catholic Epistles in Canonical Context

The Catholic Epistles often get short shrift. Tucked into a few pages near the back of our Bibles, these books are sometimes referred to as the “non-Pauline epistles” or “concluding letters,” maybe getting lumped together with Hebrews and Revelation. Yet these letters, Darian Lockett argues, are treasures hidden in plain sight, and it’s time to give them the attention they deserve.

In Letters for the Church, Lockett reveals how the Catholic Epistles provide a unique window into early Christian theology and practice. Based on evidence from the early church, he contends that the seven letters of James, 1–2 Peter, 1–3 John, and Jude were accepted into the canon as a collection and should be read together. Lockett introduces the context and content of the Catholic Epistles while emphasizing how all seven letters are connected. Each chapter outlines the author, audience, and genre of one of the epistles, traces its flow of thought, and explores shared themes with the other Catholic Epistles.

The early church valued the Catholic Epistles for multiple reasons: they defend orthodox faith and morals against the challenges of heretics, make clear that Christianity combines belief with action, and round out the New Testament witness to Christian faith and life. By introducing the coherent vision of these seven epistles, Letters for the Church helps us rediscover these riches.

“Pastors, students, and other serious Bible readers will find here fresh insight and understanding based on solid learning and due reverence for the treasures these letters contain.”

ROBERT W. YARBROUGH
Covenant Theological Seminary

“For those of us who love these letters for their wealth of practical wisdom, this book is a gift. For those who have not spent extensive time in these letters, this book is a necessity.”

MARIAM KAMELL KOVALISHYN
Regent College, Vancouver

“What Lockett uniquely brings to the table is a sustained reflection on how these seven letters relate to one another and how they together give us insight into the theology and practice of the early church. Readers will find this approach to be fruitful and illuminating.”

A Spirit-Centered Introduction to the New Testament

In the early church, miraculous workings of the Holy Spirit were normal and normative. Today an ever-increasing number of Christians worldwide self-identify as Pentecostal or charismatic. William A. Simmons argues that this means the church needs a Spirit-centered interpretation of Scripture informed by a Pentecostal lens.

In The Holy Spirit in the New Testament, Simmons provides an accessible New Testament introduction that discusses themes and passages of particular interest to Pentecostal readers. Each chapter explores the presence of the Spirit in a biblical book, then offers devotional applications to help readers respond to the text. In Matthew, for example, we discover that there is no Messianic era apart from the Spirit. For Paul in Romans, the Holy Spirit is the authenticating power and emotive heart of God. And Revelation is permeated with the illuminating voice of the Spirit from beginning to end.

A Spirit-centered reading breaks down divisions between reason and spirit, mind and emotion. This book opens a dialogue between the academy and the church, demonstrating how sound exegesis speaks to Spirit-filled Christians. In the world and writings of the New Testament authors, we continue to encounter the revelatory presence of God.

A LOOK INSIDE

The devotional intent of the New Testament must be part of a Spirit-centered study of the Bible. Yet historic and linguistic elements are part of the Spirit's work as well. Furthermore, an approach that appropriates the self-same Spirit that inspired the New Testament in the first place, is an approach that expects the text to be believed and obeyed. Therefore, what Craig Keener calls an "epistemic commitment" to the claims of Scripture and to the living voice of the Spirit must be a priori assumptions for any Spirit-filled hermeneutic. It is this very assumption that guides and shapes every chapter of this book.

WILLIAM A. SIMMONS (PhD, University of St. Andrews) is a professor of New Testament and Greek at Lee University, where he teaches graduate and undergraduate classes in the areas of Pauline studies and Koine Greek. He is the author of several books including Peoples of the New Testament World, A Pentecostal Approach to Bible Study: Leader's Guide, and Bible studies on James, Ephesians, and Philipians.

A Primer on Covenant Theology

The closely related biblical themes of covenant and law have often been debated. Yet they are among the most important topics in Scripture—theologically and practically. They address how God graciously relates to us and how we ought to live on a daily basis.

In this ESBT volume, Brandon Crowe builds on previous books in the series as he considers covenant and law throughout both Old and New Testaments. The Path of Faith lays out key principles such as the obligation of people to obey their Creator, how Jesus' perfect obedience to God's law opens the way to eternal life, and what the law means for us today as we continue walking by faith.

The Path of Faith reveals the unity of the biblical witness and the consistent call for God's people to show him covenant loyalty, all while recognizing the unique saving work of Christ on our behalf.

"Looking for a primer on covenant theology that is grounded in biblical theology? This is your book. Crowe faithfully guides you from creation to the new creation through the nexus of God's covenant and human obedience."

ANDREW T. ABERNETHY
Wheaton College

"Dr. Crowe has written an accessible and insightful book, offering his view of some of the complex biblical and theological issues of the Christian's relationship to covenant, law, obedience, and life."

JARVIS J. WILLIAMS
The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary

"Much thanks to Dr. Crowe for giving us a penetrating and practical exploration of faith, covenant, and law as they develop throughout the Scriptures. His attention to every major portion of biblical history will help all followers of Christ discern how their Christian faith is inextricably rooted in the entire Bible."

RICHARD L. PRATT JR.
president, Third Millennium Ministries

"I highly recommend this book as a helpful guide to answer fundamental questions about the relationship between covenant, law, faith, and obedience."

RICHARD P. BELCHER JR.
Reformed Theological Seminary

BRANDON D. CROWE (PhD, Edinburgh) is professor of New Testament at Westminster Theological Seminary and book review editor for the Westminster Theological Journal. He is the author of The Message of the General Epistles in the History of Redemption: Wisdom from James, Peter, John, and Jude.

ESSENTIAL STUDIES IN BIBLICAL THEOLOGY

Essential Studies in Biblical Theology (ESBT) explores the central or “essential” themes of the Bible’s grand storyline. Whereas existing series on biblical theology are generally open-ended, the ESBT will be limited to ten or so volumes. By restricting the entire series, the scope of the project is established from the beginning.

ESBT

Taking cues from Genesis 1–3, each author teases out a unique theme throughout the entire sweep of the history of redemption. The ESBT project functions as a whole in that each theme is intentional and each volume does not stand solely on its own merits. The individual volumes interlock with one another, and, taken together, form a complete and cohesive unit.

Written for students, church leaders, and laypeople, the ESBT is intended to be an introduction to core biblical-theological themes of the Bible—accessible, yet rich in content.

An Essential Resource on Jeremiah

How do we think about the theology of the book of Jeremiah? Do we consider themes section by section, or do we step back and look at the whole? John Goldingay says “both.”

In The Theology of Jeremiah, Goldingay considers the prophet Jeremiah himself, his individual circumstances and those of Judah, and his message. Though Jeremiah’s message varies throughout the book, we gain insights into Jeremiah’s theology by viewing the book in its entirety. In doing so, we learn about God, Israel as the people of God, the nature of wrongdoing and prophecy, and what we know about the future.

“Goldingay’s scholarly, concise, and vibrant writing clarifies a path for students and general readers through the maelstrom of complaints, prophecies of doom, and tragic missteps in the book of Jeremiah, helping us to hear God speak in the trauma and confusion of our times.”

JILL FIRTH
Ridley College, Melbourne

“John Goldingay is a once-in-a-generation scholar who writes with relevance, power, conviction, and clarity.”

ANDREW T. ABERNETHY

Christology in the Book of Hebrews

What does the epistle to the Hebrews mean when it calls Jesus "Son"? Is "Son" a title that denotes his eternal existence as one person of the Trinity? Or is it a title Jesus receives upon his installation on heaven's throne after his resurrection and ascension?

In this Studies in Christian Doctrine and Scripture (SCDS) volume, which promotes fresh understandings of Christian belief through creative, faithful readings of the canonical text, pastor and New Testament scholar R. B. Jamieson probes the complexity of the Christology presented in the epistle to the Hebrews.

Exploring the paradox of this key term, Jamieson argues that, according to Hebrews, "Son" names both who Jesus is eternally and what he becomes at the climax of his incarnate, saving mission. Jesus is, in short, the eternal Son who became the messianic Son for us and for our salvation. This volume thereby offers a case study showing how the church's core convictions about Christ lead us not away from the text but deeper into it.

STUDIES IN CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE AND SCRIPTURE

Studies in Christian Doctrine and Scripture, edited by Daniel J. Treier and Kevin J. Vanhoozer, promotes evangelical contributions to systematic theology, seeking fresh understanding of Christian doctrine through creatively faithful engagement with Scripture in dialogue with catholic tradition(s).

Volumes in SCDS explore the synergy between Scripture and contemporary issues, rooted in the classic evangelical commitment to Scripture as well as the perpetual need to contextualize with creative fidelity. Likewise, these volumes promote historically informed engagements with the crucial themes of classic dogmatics and contemporary systematic theology in order to promote scholarship that is theologically competent and biblically literate.

This series promotes evangelical contributions to Christian doctrine by reflecting different approaches, appealing to biblical theology, history of interpretation, theological interpretation of Scripture, and more. Some volumes engage in detailed exegesis while others appropriate broader biblical themes and patterns with the ultimate goal of promoting the constructive engagement between Scripture and Christian theology.

Torrance's Contribution to Missional Theology

Christ has ascended. Yet his work continues.

Much has been made of a "missional" view of the church in recent theological literature, but largely overlooked in this discussion has been the contribution that T. F. Torrance, the late Church of Scotland minister and theologian, can make to this discussion.

Addressing this lacuna, theologian and pastor Joseph Sherrard considers how Torrance's theology can inform the church's understanding of its ministry and mission—in particular, his appeal to the church's participation in the ascended Christ's threefold office as king, prophet, and priest.

Through the ministry of the church, Christ is still at work.

"T. F. Torrance's theology is currently attracting a growing volume of literature, and rightly so. This book makes a major contribution to that corpus. Intellectually rigorous and highly readable, the study Sherrard has given us shows well how the implications of Torrance's work extend much further than we might initially think."

JEREMY BEGBIE

Duke University

"Reflecting upon the recent turn to missional theology, Sherrard brings to the discussion the resources of Christian dogmatics, mediated through the work of T. F. Torrance. . . . This is a theological manifesto, of sorts, for missional theology, and one which retrieves Torrance as a missional theologian par excellence. This work will have wide appeal across denominational and theological divides."

NEW EXPLORATIONS IN THEOLOGY

Theology is flourishing in dynamic and unexpected ways in the twenty-first century. Scholars are increasingly recognizing the global character of the church, freely crossing old academic boundaries and challenging previously entrenched interpretations. Despite living in a culture of uncertainty, both young and senior scholars today are engaged in hopeful and creative work in the areas of systematic, historical, practical, and philosophical theology. New Explorations in Theology (NET) provides a platform for cutting-edge research in these fields.

In an age of media proliferation and academic oversaturation, there is a need to single out the best new monographs. IVP Academic is committed to publishing constructive works that advance key theological conversations. We look for projects that investigate new areas of research, stimulate fruitful dialogue, and attend to the diverse array of contexts and audiences in our increasingly pluralistic world. IVP Academic is excited to make this work available to scholars, students, and general readers who are seeking fresh new insights for the future of Christian theology.

Revised &amp; Expanded Ecclesiology Textbook

Why are there so many different expressions of church throughout time and space, and what ties them all together? Theologian Veli-Matti Kärkkäinen provides a wide-ranging survey of the rich field of ecclesiology in the midst of rapid developments and new horizons. Drawing on Kärkkäinen's international experience and comprehensive research on the church, this revised and expanded edition is thoroughly updated to incorporate recent literature and trends. This unique primer not only orients readers to biblical, historical, and contemporary ecclesiologies but also highlights contextual and global perspectives and includes an entirely new section on interfaith comparative theology. An Introduction to Ecclesiology surveys

- major theological traditions, including Eastern Orthodox, Roman Catholic, Reformed, and Pentecostal
- ecclesiological insights from Latin American, Africa, and Asia
- distinct perspectives from women, African Americans, and recent trends in the United States
- key elements of the church such as mission, governance, worship, and sacraments
- interreligious comparison with Jewish, Islamic, Hindu, and Buddhist communities

For students, pastors, and laypeople, this is an essential resource for understanding how the church can live out its calling as Christ's community on earth.

The Possibility of Salvation After Death

One of Jesus' most basic commands to his disciples was to tell the world about the good news of his life, death, and resurrection. From the earliest days of the church, Christians have embraced this calling.

But for those Christians who emphasize the need for an active response to the gospel in order to be saved, this raises some difficult questions: What about those who did not hear the gospel before death? Or what about those who heard an incorrect or incomplete version of the gospel? Or what about those who were too young or who were otherwise unable to respond?

In light of these challenging questions, theologian James Beilby offers a careful consideration of the possibility for salvation after death. After examining the biblical evidence and assessing the theological implications, he argues that there is indeed hope for faith—even beyond death.

“Beilby skillfully draws on exegetical, philosophical, and theological resources to offer his view of Postmortem Opportunity for salvation, both for the unevangelized and the pseudoevangelized.”

A New Translation of Julian's Commentaries

"Then the Lord answered Job out of the whirlwind . . ."

Julian of Eclanum (c. 386–455) was the bishop of Eclanum, located in modern-day Italy. In this volume in IVP's Ancient Christian Texts series, Thomas Scheck provides a new translation of Julian's commentaries on the biblical books of Job and of three Minor Prophets: Hosea, Joel, and Amos.

Here, readers will gain insight into how early Christians read texts such as God's speech to Job, Hosea's symbolic representation of God's unending love for a faithless Israel, Joel's anticipation of the outpouring of the Holy Spirit, and Amos's call for social justice.

Although Julian was a well-known leader among the Pelagians, whose theology was famously opposed by Augustine of Hippo and ultimately determined to be outside the bounds of the church's orthodoxy, the Pelagian movement was a significant element within the early church.

And although Julian's Pelagianism does not fundamentally affect the commentaries presented in this volume, Christians can gain insight into the truths of Scripture by reading the text alongside others, even when—or perhaps especially when—we might disagree with other aspects of their beliefs.

THOMAS P. SCHECK (PhD, University of Iowa) is associate professor of theology at Ave Maria University in Ave Maria, Florida. He is the author of Origen and the History of Justification and Erasmus's Life of Origen. He is also the editor of two volumes of Jerome's Commentaries on the Twelve Prophets and the translator for Origen's Homilies on Numbers in IVP's Ancient Christian Texts series as well as the translator of Origen: Commentary on the Epistle to the Romans and St. Jerome: Commentary on Matthew in the Fathers of the Church series and Jerome's Commentaries on Isaiah and Ezekiel in the Ancient Christian Writers series.

A Quick Introduction to Church History

The history of the Christian church is a fascinating story. Since the ascension of Jesus and the birth of the church at Pentecost, the followers of Christ have experienced persecution and martyrdom, established orthodoxy and orthopraxy, endured internal division and social upheaval, and sought to proclaim the good news “to the end of the earth.” How can we possibly begin to grasp the complexity of the church’s story?

In this brief volume, historian Jennifer Woodruff Tait provides a primer using seven sentences to introduce readers to the sweeping scope of church history. Among the sentences:

- “No one whatsoever should be denied the opportunity to give his heart to the observance of the Christian religion.”
—The Edict of Milan (313)
- “Light from Light, true God from true God, begotten not made, of one substance from the Father.”
—The Nicene Creed (325)
- “When our Lord and Master Jesus Christ said, ‘Repent,’ he willed the entire life of believers to be one of repentance.”
—Martin Luther’s Ninety-Five Theses (1517)
- “The church is confronted today, as in no preceding generation, with a literally worldwide opportunity to make Christ known.”
—The Edinburgh Conference (1910)

WOODRUFF TAIT

IVP EDITOR
DAVID
MCNUTT

Our Seven Sentences series offers readers brief introductions to entire disciplines by exploring seven representative sentences. How did you come up with your sentences for Christian history?

TAIT: It was very difficult to select from the hundreds if not thousands of possibilities! Since there is also a book planned in the series called Theology in Seven Sentences, I was encouraged to consider sentences from documents that had significantly shaped the historical context of the church. This led me in the direction of creeds, councils, edicts, and proclamations. I also wanted a good balance of sentences from all eras of the church, so I ended up with two early church sentences, two medieval ones, an early modern one, and two from the modern era.

I often tell my students that they should think of figures in church history not as names and dates to memorize but as brothers and sisters in Christ who just happen to be with Jesus now.

JENNIFER WOODRUFF TAIT

Why should Christians today concern themselves with the history of the church, which is so often removed from us by time, culture, language, and more? What can we hope to learn from earlier Christians?

TAIT: I've taught church history as an affiliate professor at Asbury Theological Seminary. I often tell my students that they should think of figures in church history not as names and dates to memorize but as brothers and sisters in Christ who just happen to be with Jesus now. From them, we can learn how to wrestle with difficult questions, spread the Gospel, and be faithful disciples of Christ. Sometimes (for example, the Crusades, the burning of heretics, the German state church during Nazism), we learn this from looking at them and deciding not to do what they did.

I'm particularly inspired in this by G. K. Chesterton, who once said—I quote him in the book, in fact—that “tradition means giving a vote to the most obscure of all classes, our ancestors.” I look at church history as inviting them into the conversation.

I'll give you the chance to mention a couple of the other sentences that you might have chosen for the book. What else do you wish you could have included?

TAIT: My favorite piece of writing in the entire history of the Christian church is Athanasius's On the Incarnation, especially its central affirmation: “Christ was made man that we might be made God.” I urge you to go read the whole thing right now—I'll wait. Try to find the version with the introduction by C. S. Lewis (which is also one of my favorite pieces of Christian writing).

As an Anglican, I also wish I could have used the collect for the first Sunday of Advent from the Book of Common Prayer: “Almighty God, give us grace that we may cast away the works of darkness, and put upon us the armor of light, now in the time of this mortal life in which thy Son Jesus Christ came to visit us in great humility; that in the last day, when he shall come again in his glorious majesty to judge both the quick and the dead, we may rise to the life immortal; through him who liveth and reigneth with thee and the Holy Ghost, one God, now and forever. Amen.” (Yes, that's a very long sentence.)

Finally, as someone from a Wesleyan-Arminian background, I would love to have included John Wesley's famous report of his experience at Aldersgate: “I felt my heart strangely warmed. I felt I did trust in Christ, Christ alone, for salvation; and an assurance was given me that He had taken away my sins, even mine, and saved me from the law of sin and death.”

In addition to serving as the managing editor of Christian History magazine, you are an ordained priest in the Episcopal Church. How does knowing church history inform your ministry?

TAIT: One of my mentors, Mthr. Margaret Shanks, said once as she was training acolytes, “Every mistake that can be made in the church has been made, and Christ is still worshipped.” Knowing church history helps me remember that, and it's a heartening thought. When I preach and when I lead Christian education and formation, a knowledge of church history also helps me give context as to how the Bible has been interpreted through the centuries. ■

Completing the Reformation Commentary on John's Gospel

After he had washed the disciples' feet, Jesus said, "Just as I have loved you, you also are to love one another." The second half of the Gospel of John, sometimes called the most "theological" of the Gospels, includes John's account of Jesus' final night with his disciples, his betrayal and arrest, his crucifixion, his resurrection, and his appearances to his disciples.

When the Reformers of the sixteenth century turned to the fourth Gospel, they found a multitude of theological treasures: a clear affirmation of the full divinity of Christ; insights into the relationships among the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit; and guidance for the church in their time. For example, John Calvin claimed, "This Gospel is a key to open the door for understanding the rest; for whoever shall understand the power of Christ, as it is here strikingly portrayed, will afterwards read with advantage what the others relate about the Redeemer who was manifested."

In this volume of the Reformation Commentary on Scripture, church historian Christopher Boyd Brown guides readers through a diversity of early modern commentary on chapters 13–21 of the Gospel of John. Readers will hear from familiar voices and discover lesser-known figures from a range of theological traditions, including Lutherans, Reformed, Radicals, Anglicans, and Roman Catholics.

Drawing upon a variety of resources—including commentaries, sermons, treatises, and confessions—much of which appears here for the first time in English, this volume provides resources for contemporary preachers, enables scholars to better understand the depth and breadth of Reformation commentary, and seeks to encourage all those who desire to love as Jesus loves.

REFORMATION COMMENTARY ON SCRIPTURE

The Reformation Commentary on Scripture collects Protestant Reformation reflections on the entirety of the Bible, chapter by chapter, introducing readers to the depth and richness of exegetical ferment that defined the Reformation.

Each volume contains the biblical text in English alongside the insights of both well-known and lesser-known Reformers, including Lutherans, Reformed, Radicals, Anglicans, and Roman Catholics. By drawing from an array of Reformation resources—including commentaries, sermons, treatises, and confessions—this series will equip scholars to better understand the depth and breadth of Reformation commentary.

“Protestant reformers were fundamentally exegetes as much as theologians, yet (except for figures like Luther and Calvin) their commentaries and sermons have been neglected because these writings are not available in modern editions or languages. . . . This series is far from being an esoteric study of largely forgotten voices; this collection of reforming comments, comprehending every verse and provided with topical headings, will serve contemporary pastors and preachers very well.”

ELSIE ANNE MCKEE

“The Reformation Commentary on Scripture is a major publishing event—for those with historical interest in the founding convictions of Protestantism, but even more for those who care about understanding the Bible.”

Go to Church with the Reformers

Worship of the triune God has always stood at the center of the Christian life. That was certainly the case during the sixteenth-century Reformation as well. Yet in the midst of tremendous social and theological upheaval, the church had to renew its understanding of what it means to worship God.

In this volume, which serves as a companion to IVP Academic's Reformation Commentary on Scripture series, Reformation scholar Karin Maag takes readers inside the worshiping life of the church during this era. Drawing from sources across theological traditions, she explores several aspects of the church's worship, including what it was like to attend church, reforms in preaching, the function of prayer, how Christians experienced the sacraments, and the roles of both visual art and music in worship. With Maag as your guide, you can go to church—with the Reformers.

The 1662 Book of Common Prayer (New International Edition of the Classic Anglican Prayerbook)

The Book of Common Prayer (1662) is one of the most beloved liturgical texts in the Christian church, and it remains a definitive expression of Anglican identity today. It is still widely used around the world, in public worship and private devotion, and is revered for both its linguistic and theological virtues.

But the classic text of the 1662 prayer book presents several difficulties for contemporary users, especially those outside the Church of England. The 1662 Book of Common Prayer: International Edition gently updates the text for contemporary use. State prayers of England have been replaced with prayers that can be used regardless of nation or polity. Obscure words and phrases have been modestly revised—but always with a view toward preserving the prayer book's own cadence. Finally, a selection of treasured prayers from later Anglican tradition has been appended.

"This latest presentation of its riches is, like the original, marked by judicious common sense but also by a sure instinct for how its many virtues can elegantly be augmented by the practice of later centuries."

A History of Evangelical Biblicism

From its earliest days, Christians in the movement known as evangelicalism have had “a particular regard for the Bible,” to borrow a phrase from David Bebbington, the historian who framed its most influential definition. But this “biblicism” has taken many different forms from the 1730s to the 2020s. How has the eternal Word of God been received across various races, age groups, genders, nations, and eras?

This collection of historical studies focuses on evangelicals’ defining uses—and abuses—of Scripture, from Great Britain to the Global South, from the high pulpit to the Sunday School classroom, from private devotions to public causes.

An Accessible Introduction to the Study of Logic

How do we think? What does a faithful use of logic look like?

Without even pausing to think about it, we exercise our capacity for rational thought. But how exactly does logic work? What makes some arguments valid and others not?

In this Questions in Christian Philosophy volume, philosopher Forrest Baird offers an introduction to logic. He considers the basic building blocks of human reason, including types of arguments, fallacies, syllogisms, symbols, and proofs, all of which are demonstrated with exercises for students throughout. In addition, he reflects on the relationship between the use of reason and the Christian faith.

With this academic but accessible primer, readers will be introduced to the basics of logic—and encouraged to reason better.

“Chock full of real-life and timely examples, judiciously calibrated and measured in scope, this altogether student-friendly and accessible primer for learning—and learning well—the rudimentary principles of logic hits just the right note.

An ideal choice for an introductory logic course.”

QUESTIONS IN CHRISTIAN PHILOSOPHY

QUESTIONS IN CHRISTIAN PHILOSOPHY

How do we know? What should we do? What is real? What is art?

Philosophy, which means “the love of wisdom,” asks such questions in its pursuit of knowledge and understanding of all facets of life: existence, knowledge, ethics, art, and more. But what does it mean for Christians to pursue wisdom when Scripture affirms that the crucified and risen Christ is “the wisdom of God” (1 Cor 1:24)?

IVP Academic’s Questions in Christian Philosophy (QCP) series seeks to help readers in their pursuit of wisdom from a Christian perspective by offering introductory textbooks on the various branches of philosophy. Designed for students with little or no background in the discipline, this series draws upon experts in the field and lays a solid foundation for further philosophical reflection in pursuit of divine wisdom.

INTRODUCTORY ►►►

“The Church has a vital stake in raising up Christians trained in philosophy, the most fundamental domain of thought, who will help to create a place at our universities and other cultural spaces for Christian ideas. It is my hope that IVP Academic’s Questions in Christian Philosophy series will make an important contribution to the training of the next generation of Christian scholars, leaders, and laypeople.”

WILLIAM LANE CRAIG
Biola University

“Designed as undergraduate or graduate texts, as well as providing resources for thoughtful readers everywhere, this series of excellent books, written by well-trained and biblically faithful authors, could not be coming at a better time. I urge Christian schools to require them as texts and churches to make them must-reading. With gratitude and enthusiasm, I highly recommend this wonderful series.”

Wide-Ranging Arguments for God’s Existence

Does God exist? Throughout the history of philosophical and theological reflection, this fundamental question has prompted a range of responses.

In one incisive volume, philosopher W. David Beck offers a narrative of pre-Christian, Jewish, Buddhist, Christian, and Islamic arguments for God’s existence. Here, readers will encounter both classical and contemporary arguments, including cosmological, teleological, moral, and ontological arguments along with commentary from the author.

Explore the history of answers to an essential question and add your own reflections to this ongoing conversation.

“Finally! A single volume that contains as a historical narrative a compendium of arguments pertaining to God’s existence—pro, con, and from most religious perspectives—all under one cover. Fantastic! Highly recommended!”

GARY R. HABERMAS
Liberty University

“In this herculean effort, David Beck has written a superb guide and rich resource on the major arguments for God’s existence. Not only does he astutely summarize the breadth of positions articulated by particular thinkers on the respective arguments—pro and con—but he includes much material from primary sources, which significantly enhances the value of this volume. A fine achievement!”

PAUL COPAN
Palm Beach Atlantic University

“There are lots of books available on the existence of God, but few, if any, that do a good job of presenting all the key arguments in a historical and contemporary way. Professor Beck’s book Does God Exist? is a rare exception. . . . Much can be learned from the past that is of immense contemporary importance. Beck is a well-respected philosopher and brings decades of teaching and research to this book. I highly recommend it.”

Second Edition of a Trusted Philosophy Textbook

Philosophy is for everyone. We think philosophically whenever we ask life's big questions: What is real? How do we know what we know? What is the right thing to do? What does it mean to be human? How should we view science and its claims? Why should we believe that God exists?

Philosophy is thinking critically about questions that matter. But many people find philosophy intimidating, so they never discover how invaluable it can be in engaging ideas, culture, and even their faith. Garrett DeWeese and J. P. Moreland understand these challenges, and in this book they apply their decades of teaching experience to help to make philosophy a little less difficult.

Using straightforward language with plenty of everyday examples, they explain the basics needed to understand philosophical concepts—including logic, metaphysics, epistemology, ethics, philosophical anthropology, and philosophy of science. This second edition includes new chapters on aesthetics and philosophy of religion, as well as updated content on some current issues in philosophy.

"Here's your chance to learn the fundamentals of philosophy in an accessible, easy-to-understand format. In the end, you'll wonder how you ever got along without this essential foundation to your faith."

LEE STROBEL

How Is Our News Consumption Forming Us?

Whenever we reach for our phones or scan a newspaper to get “caught up,” we are being not merely informed but also formed. News consumption can shape our sense of belonging, how we judge the value of our lives, and even how our brains function. As Christians, we need a better understanding of what the news is for and how to read it well.

Jeffrey Bilbro invites readers to take a step back and gain some theological and historical perspective on the nature and very purpose of news. In Reading the Times he reflects on how we pay attention, how we discern the nature of time and history, and how we form communities through what we read and discuss. Drawing on writers from Thoreau and Dante to Merton and Berry, along with activist-journalists such as Frederick Douglass and Dorothy Day, Bilbro offers an alternative vision of the rhythms of life, one in which we understand our times in light of what is timeless. Throughout, he suggests practices to counteract common maladies tied to media consumption in order cultivate healthier ways of reading and being.

When the news sets itself up as the light of the world, it usurps the role of the living Word. But when it helps us attend together to the work of Christ—down through history and within our daily contexts—it can play a vital part in enabling us to love our neighbors. Reading the Times is a refreshing and humane call to put the news in its place.

“I am so grateful for a book that steps back from the flash and distraction of headlines to think deeply about the purpose of the news and how Christians are called to engage. . . . A relevant and timeless book about how Christians should belong in but not of this world.”

JESSICA HOOTEN WILSON

Christian Voices for Human Flourishing

In the midst of a divisive culture and a related crisis within evangelicalism, public intellectuals speaking from an evangelical perspective have a critical role to play—within the church and beyond. What does it look like to embrace such a vocation out of a commitment to the common good?

Public Intellectuals and the Common Good draws together world-class scholars and practitioners to cast a vision for intellectuals who promote human flourishing. Representing various roles in the church, higher education, journalism, and the nonprofit sector, contributors reflect theologically on their work and assess current challenges and opportunities. What historically well-defined qualities of public intellectuals should be adopted now? What qualities should be jettisoned or reimaged?

Public intellectuals are mediators—understanding and then articulating truth amid the complex realities of our world. The conversations represented in this book celebrate and provide guidance for those who through careful thinking, writing, speaking, and innovation cultivate the good of their communities.

A LOOK INSIDE PUBLIC INTELLECTUALS AND THE COMMON GOOD

Excerpt from Chapter 1: “On Being a Christian Public Intellectual”

CONTRIBUTOR
VOLF

For centuries, the social world was relatively simple—“social world” designating here the world of economy, politics, technology, and communication, along with the impact of these on the environment; what we can describe . . . as the combined effect of human poiesis and praxis. Today changes are far reaching and their pace breathtaking. The social world is exceedingly complex, with major transformations often happening under the surface, inaccessible to immediate observation. To identify and track the changes requires careful study. Public intellectuals do important work in helping the larger population understand the dynamics of change and its implications for human life.

In a complex and fast-changing world, we also need help with identifying the best ways to achieve goals that concern the common good. The tools we must use to find our way in the world and make the world serviceable to our needs are understandably highly complex as well, tracking in complexity the social world in which they are put to use. The introduction of new materials and new technologies has potential for both help and harm; some solutions are less costly than others, and so forth. If we are to adopt new technologies responsibly, we need public intellectuals to help us discern the effects of technologies on our individual lives, on communities, and on major institutions.

In the two tasks mentioned—understanding the world and designing and deploying technologies (which have to do, respectively, with explanatory and instrumental rationality)—the work of Christian public intellectuals will largely overlap with the work of public intellectuals of any other religious or secular orientation. Between these two tasks lies the third, which concerns human purposes. At the heart of the Christian faith and Christian thinking about social issues is concern for the fundamental orientation in life, for the kind of life, individual and social, that is truly worthy of our humanity. This is not in the first instance a question of morality, about how we should behave, though moral questions are included in it; this is above all a question of human ontology, about who we are, about how we are set in the story of everything, and about the goal toward which we ought to stretch ourselves.

To put the matter in the vocabulary of St. Augustine, Christian faith, and therefore Christian public engagement, is about what we should ultimately trust and what we should love above all things (and what we should, therefore, deeply mistrust and struggle against); it is about how we should live, as individuals, communities, and the entire human family, in the light of that trust and love. ■

Encouragement for Mothers in the Academy

“The dominant narrative we hear as professor mothers is that motherhood and academia are incompatible.”

Two challenging vocations, each filled with complexities and daily ups and downs. Yet more and more women are answering the call to both the academy and motherhood. What are the particular needs of Christian women seeking to navigate both callings while living out their faith?

With Power Women, Nancy Wang Yuen and Deshonna Collier-Goubil have curated a unique resource by and for Christian academic mothers. This collection of essays includes the voices of women of different backgrounds, academic disciplines, institutions, and stages of parenting and career. Together contributors provide wisdom, encouragement, and solidarity for women who share a similar vocational journey. Combining research with personal stories, they address topics such as these:

- how parenting and teaching can be mutually enriching
- managing ambition, identity, and time
- addressing misconceptions about motherhood in the academy, church, and society
- navigating gender roles in marriage
- taking maternity leave
- flourishing as an adjunct professor
- mentoring professor moms
- resisting imposter syndrome by finding rest in God

There is no magic formula, but there are many paths to thriving in the call to motherhood and the academy. Christian academic moms will find in this book honest yet uplifting reminders that they are not alone. In addition, administrators, family members, and friends will grow in understanding and appreciation of the power women in their lives.

What motivated you to take on this project? Was there a specific circumstance or event that inspired the book?

COLLIER-GOUBIL: I became a mom while in a full-time faculty position. In Christian higher education, our environments are very family friendly, but navigating new parenthood is still daunting. I wished there was a resource that spoke to my unique circumstances.

YUEN: I want to give voice to and provide a resource for others struggling to balance motherhood, the academy, and faith.

What are some challenges that Christian mothers in the academy face that seem different from challenges that perhaps all or the vast majority of academic mothers face?

COLLIER-GOUBIL: At times a person's religious beliefs can prevent them from seeking assistance and discussing things we do not often discuss in the church, such as infertility and child loss, or when a faculty mom is the head of her household. A Christian woman experiencing infertility has to consider not only the personal and medical repercussions of her decisions but also the social and professional. Similarly, a faculty mom who is head of household has to navigate the historical territory of the church that calls for male leadership in all areas and aspects of life (depending on faith background). Being a pastor, faculty, or mom, including a mom dealing with depression, or a mom of an exceptional child—these are areas that we fail to openly discuss in many churches, so where do we leave a faculty mama to turn for assistance?

As you gathered stories and worked with contributors, what is one thing you learned (or a highlight of that process)?

COLLIER-GOUBIL: I have been so inspired by the creativity, resilience, and brilliance of our contributing authors. They have navigated rough terrain and still show up in class perfectly assembled, carrying grace and mercy for students, and with a lesson plan ready to go! Then a few hours later, they become a problem solver in chief, assisting their littles to navigate all sorts of issues that life throws their way. They truly are power women!

YUEN: I learned from the contributors to conceptualize motherhood, the academy, and faith not as different spheres vying for our attention but synergistic assets.

We're in the middle of a pandemic. Would you be willing to speak to the effects of this crisis on academic mothers in general or those you know personally?

COLLIER-GOUBIL: The moms I know personally are struggling. This pandemic has definitely affected all in a remarkable way. Faculty moms are burning the candle at both ends, so to speak, and trying to avoid burnout. It's a tough time for us all.

YUEN: Professor mothers who have to supervise or homeschool their children because of school and daycare closures are having a hard time finding work-life balance. At the same time, they also savor the slowing down of time with their children and families.

What is one message you hope readers take away from your book?

COLLIER-GOUBIL: We hope that readers find themselves, their colleagues, and faculty they supervise in our book. We hope that the stories of these powerful and faith-filled women will motivate us all to aspire to a higher-ed workspace that is more inclusive of the myriad pressures experienced by faculty moms.

YUEN: We want this book to be an encouragement for Christian professor mothers as well as a resource for all those who work alongside and supervise them. ■

A Guide to the Transition from Graduate Studies to Teaching

It's a long way from the research carrel to the classroom. No matter your personality, your prior experience, or the specifics of your situation, the transition from graduate studies to teaching involves a set of challenges for which no one is ever fully prepared. In this practical guide Michael Kibbe, author of From Topic to Thesis, provides a helpful companion for the journey.

With plenty of personal examples and tested advice, Kibbe covers preparation for teaching, best practices in the classroom, self-evaluation, and the discovery of your mission and method. He also reflects on the spiritual lives of professors, including social media practices, Sabbath, and relationships. From Research to Teaching is the concise, accessible resource every new and aspiring professor needs.

"Warmly relatable and incredibly practical, Kibbe's small guide achieves great things, or, better said, makes it possible for readers to achieve great things. . . . I know this will benefit my students who are training for the academy because it has already been a tangible benefit to me."

AMY PEELER
Wheaton College and Graduate School

"Mike Kibbe has a rare gift for being able to pass along not just the content of his expertise but the process that got him there. . . . The result is a lively and engaging tutorial in the art of becoming a world-class professor. I couldn't put it down. Grab a copy for every recent PhD you know in Bible, theology, or related disciplines. They'll thank you!"

CARMEN JOYIMES

MICHAEL KIBBE (PhD, Wheaton College) is associate professor of biblical studies and dean of communication and theology at Great Northern University in Spokane, Washington. He is the author of Godly Fear or Ungodly Failure? Hebrews 12 and the Sinai Theophanies and has written for journals such as Biblica, Theology Today, and the Journal of Theological Studies.

INTERVIEW WITH THE AUTHOR

AUTHOR

IVP EDITOR
ANNA
GISSING

What was the most unexpected challenge for you personally as you made the transition to teaching after grad school?

KIBBE: Writing a dissertation is 90% perseverance—just keep going, keep digging, keep stubbornly insisting that you haven't yet gotten to the bottom of things, and eventually you will do precisely that. Five thousand hours of work to prepare for a two-hour dissertation defense. All of a sudden I had forty-five minutes to prepare for a ninety minute class session, and not just once, but several times per week for the next four months. Rinse, repeat. It's like going from ultrarunning to Crossfit.

Tell us about the structure of the book. How would you describe the two sections and what they include?

KIBBE: The book is intentionally—and, for an academic, somewhat counterintuitively—structured around what teachers must do (first) and what they must know (second). Putting doing before knowing reminds us that teaching is a skill, and you can't theorize your way into a skill. You have to go do it, and then, as you do it—and reflect on what you did—you'll come to know the things that will enable you to go back and do it again.

Your previous book, From Topic to Thesis, remains popular with readers, so it makes sense to have a follow up to that one. Why did you decide to focus on the transition from graduate school to teaching for your next book?

KIBBE: My father was a high school math teacher, and a good one. I mean, he could not only get from A (problem) to B (solution); he could show you how he did so, step by concrete step, and teach you to do likewise. So I suppose I'm drawn to situations in which we are given "A" and "B" but not necessarily shown how to get from one to the other. The movement from graduate school to teaching is definitely one of those situations! There's also some autobiography in all this: I moved from the church to the library (and had to learn how to research), and then I moved from the library to the classroom (and had to learn how to teach).

My hope in this book is to be that friend who remembers those early years of teaching well enough to be a helpful dialogue partner for those still navigating them.

You've been teaching for several years, but it's probably still pretty fresh as well. How does your current stage (not exactly new but not yet a teaching legend) help you author this book?

KIBBE: Most books on teaching are written by the legends, and that's a good thing! But the early years of teaching are like the early years of parenting: for some things you need grandma (the "legend") and for others you need some friends who are right alongside you or maybe just a few steps ahead. That's where I come in! This is year seven for me, which means—to follow the parenting analogy—I am no longer up at all hours of the night wondering how in the world I'm going to get this kid to fall asleep, but I still remember that stage quite clearly. My hope in this book is to be that friend who remembers those early years of teaching well enough to be a helpful dialogue partner for those still navigating them.

You have a chapter of the book about the power of professors. Why is power an important concept to keep in mind as professors lean into teaching?

KIBBE: Every year, from (roughly) July to October, my family in California lives under the threat of forest fires. Our students, likewise, live every day in the classroom under similar circumstances. The apostle James tells us that the tongue is a deadly flame, and we who speak for a living must never forget the power we possess. Power to do incredible good, power to do inestimable evil. And since the best teachers can do the most damage, because their words have the most power, the invitation to great pedagogy is simultaneously an invitation to great caution.

What is your hope for readers of your book?

KIBBE: Intentionality is the irreducible minimum of great teaching. As I continue to grow as a teacher, I have this one hope above all: that I move closer and closer to doing everything on purpose. Everything from the fundamental course outcomes to the font size on the handout, from an assigned reading to the intonation with which I cite a specific phrase from it. This book is an invitation to others to join me on that journey—to think more deeply about why we teach the way we do, at every level. ■

Organizational Leadership Favorite Now in Paperback

Institutions matter. But we often view them somewhat cynically, perhaps as a necessary evil. In truth, institutions remain essential to human flourishing. They are the very means by which communities thrive, individual vocations are fulfilled, and society is changed for the good. We all must learn the wisdom of working effectively within institutions—what Gordon Smith calls institutional intelligence.

In this book Smith unlocks the essential elements of how institutions function in a productive, healthy manner. Focusing on the nonprofit sector, he shows how team leaders, directors, executives, board members, key stakeholders, and employees can avoid what is often their greatest source of stress on the job—working with the institutional character of their organizations.

Church staff, educators, and those in service agencies can all thrive by understanding these dynamics instead of fighting against them. By developing institutional intelligence, we and those around us can not only flourish personally but also fulfill a larger mission.

“Drawing on rich theoretical insight and years of lived investment in institutions, Smith has written a veritable handbook for the future of faithful work. I can’t imagine anyone who shouldn’t read this.”

JAMES K. A. SMITH
Calvin College

“I’m thrilled that Dr. Smith has written this book in which he was able to reflect creatively on what constitutes the right building blocks for a healthy institution. . . . I highly recommend this book to all church, seminary, and nonprofit leaders.”

RIAD KASSIS
International Council for Evangelical Theological Education

“Not just identified ‘leaders,’ but both friends and foes of institutions, along with the people they serve (which is all of us), would do well to learn from this book.”

GORDON T. SMITH is the president of Ambrose University and Seminary in Calgary, Alberta, where he also serves as professor of systematic and spiritual theology. He is an ordained minister with the Christian and Missionary Alliance and a teaching fellow at Regent College, Vancouver, British Columbia. Counseling Text for Treating Children and Adolescents

Caring for the mental health of children and their families is complex and challenging—and meaningful. For Christian clinicians who work with childhood disorders, however, few resources exist to address such treatment from a research-based Christian integration perspective.

Treatment of Childhood Disorders fills this gap by combining biblical and theological understanding with current psychological literature on empirically supported treatments for children. Sarah E. Hall and Kelly S. Flanagan present an integrated approach based in developmental psychopathology, which offers a dynamic, multifaceted framework from which to understand the processes that affect children’s development.

In this unique textbook, Hall and Flanagan consider a variety of disorders commonly diagnosed in children and adolescents, including anxiety, depression, ADHD, and autism spectrum disorder. After discussing prevalence, risk and causal factors, patterns throughout development, and assessment, they focus on evidence-based practices that have been found to be effective in treating the disorders. Each chapter also features ideas for Christian integration in treatment and an extended case study that brings the content to life.

“Children are not merely smaller versions of adults; their functioning and development are qualitatively different, as is the development and expression of psychopathology. . . . Therefore, in this volume we set out to fill what we see as a significant gap in the literature by integrating scientific child clinical research with a Christian perspective. . . . We hope and pray that the ideas we cover in this volume will be both empowering and challenging to current and future Christian clinicians who work with youth and families.”

A Constructive Christian Perspective on Positive Psychology

Originally the field of psychology had a threefold mission: to cure mental illness, yes, but also to find ways to make life fulfilling for all and to maximize talent. Over the last century, a focus on mental illness has often been prioritized over studies of health, to the point that many people assume “psychologist” is just another way of saying “psychotherapist.” This book is about one attempt to restore the discipline’s larger mission.

Positive psychology attends to what philosophers call “the good life.” It is about fostering strength and living well—about how to do a good job at being human. Some of that will involve cheerful emotions, and some of it will not. There are vital roles to be played by archetypal challenges such as those involving self-control, guilt, and grit, and even the terror of death enters into positive psychology’s vision of human flourishing.

Charles Hackney connects this still-new movement to foundational concepts in philosophy and Christian theology. He then explores topics such as subjective states, cognitive processes, and the roles of personality, relationships, and environment, also considering relevant practices in spheres from the workplace to the church and even the martial arts dojo. Hackney takes seriously the range of critiques positive psychology has faced as he frames a constructive future for Christian contributions to the field.

“If you’re looking for the most thorough and thoughtful look at positive psychology from a Christian perspective, this is it.”

MARK R. MCMINN

“For the reader who wants to put a Christian understanding of positive psychology in historical, theological, philosophical, and psychological perspective, this is the definitive book.”

The Hansen Lectureship Series features reflections related to the imaginative work and lasting influence of seven British authors, including C. S. Lewis, J. R. R. Tolkien, George MacDonald, and Dorothy L. Sayers.

The books in the series are based on the Ken and Jean Hansen Lectureship, an annual lecture series hosted at the Marion E. Wade Center at Wheaton College, named in honor of former Wheaton College trustee Ken Hansen and his wife, Jean, and endowed in their memory by Walter and Darlene Hansen. Each book includes three lectures by a Wheaton College faculty member on one or more of the Wade Center authors with responses by fellow faculty members.

Founded in 1965, the Marion E. Wade Center houses a major research collection of writings and related materials by and about seven British authors: Owen Barfield, G. K. Chesterton, C. S. Lewis, George MacDonald, Dorothy L. Sayers, J. R. R. Tolkien, and Charles Williams. The Wade Center collects, preserves, and makes these resources available to researchers and visitors through its reading room, museum displays, educational programming, and publications. All of these endeavors are a tribute to the importance of the literary, historical, and Christian heritage of these writers.

Tracing the Theme of “Servant” Through the Entire Bible

It is often recognized that the title “servant” is applied to key figures throughout the Bible, culminating in Jesus Christ.

In this New Studies in Biblical Theology volume Matthew Harmon carefully traces this theme from Genesis to Revelation with the intention of seeing how earlier servants point forward to the ultimate Servant. While this servant theme certainly is significant in its own right throughout redemptive history, it also plays a supporting role, enhancing and enriching other themes such as son, prophet, and king.

Harmon shows how the title “servant” not only gives us a clearer understanding of Jesus Christ but also has profound implications for our lives as Christians. When we grasp what it means to be servants of Christ, our love for him and our obedience to him deepen. Understanding that the ultimate Servant, Jesus Christ, indwells his people to empower them to serve others in love has the potential to transform how we interact with fellow believers and the world around us.

MATTHEW S. HARMON (PhD, Wheaton College) is professor of New Testament studies at Grace College and Theological Seminary in Winona Lake, Indiana. His books include Rebels and Exiles, Making All Things New, and Asking the Right Questions: A Practical Guide to Understanding and Applying the Bible as well commentaries on Galatians, Philipians, 2 Peter, and Jude.

NEW STUDIES IN BIBLICAL THEOLOGY

SERIES | NSBT

Addressing key issues in biblical theology, the works composing New Studies in Biblical Theology are creative attempts to help Christians better understand their Bibles. Edited by D. A. Carson, they aim to simultaneously instruct and edify, to interact with current scholarship, and to point the way ahead.

BIOLOGOS BOOKS ON SCIENCE AND CHRISTIANITY

The BioLogos Foundation invites the church and the world to see the harmony between science and biblical faith as they present an evolutionary understanding of God's creation. BioLogos Books on Science and Christianity, a partnership between BioLogos and IVP Academic, aims to advance this mission by publishing a range of titles from scholarly monographs to textbooks to personal stories.

The books in this series have wide appeal among Christian audiences, from non-specialists to scholars in the field. While the authors address a range of topics on science and faith, they support the view of evolutionary creation, which sees evolution as our current best scientific description of how God brought about the diversity of life on earth. The series authors are faithful Christians and leading scholars in their fields.

ABOUT THE SERIES

STUDIES in
and the ARTS

IVP Academic's Studies in Theology and the Arts (STA) seeks to enable Christians to reflect more deeply on the relationship between their faith and humanity's artistic and cultural expressions.

By drawing on the insights of both academic theologians and artistic practitioners, this series encourages thoughtful engagement with and critical discernment of the full variety of artistic media—including visual art, music, literature, film, theater, and more—which both embody and inform Christian thinking.

"Studies in Theology and the Arts provides Christian scholars, artists, and church leaders with an opportunity to shape our theological perspective on the arts in light of the creative realities of our Maker God. These resources can help by extending the salvific narrative into broader creation and new creation narratives, enriching our grasp of the gospel and revealing how wide and long and high and deep is the love of Christ."

MAKOTO FUJIMURA

director, Brehm Center for Worship, Theology, and the Arts

"This series is an exciting and critically important development in the burgeoning theology and arts field. It promises to advance the discussion in fresh and highly fruitful ways."

STRATEGIC INITIATIVES IN EVANGELICAL THEOLOGY

Strategic Initiatives in Evangelical Theology is a series of seminal works of scholarship that have strategic relevance for both evangelical scholarship and the evangelical church. They aim to foster interaction within the broader evangelical community and advance discussion in the wider academic community around emerging, current, groundbreaking, or controversial subjects. The series provides a unique publishing venue for both more senior and younger promising scholars.

While the volumes demonstrate a depth of appreciation for evangelical theology and the current challenges and issues facing it, the series seeks to engage the full range of academic disciplines from theology and biblical studies to history, literature, philosophy, the natural and social sciences, and the arts.

A WEEK IN THE LIFE SERIES

Have you ever wanted a first-century view of the world of the Gospels? In entertaining historical fiction, splashed with informative sidebars and images, the volumes in A Week in the Life Series capture a view of Jesus' world from the outer framework looking in.

In these imaginative and entertaining narratives, New Testament scholars lead us behind the veil of centuries to see and experience the historical and social realities of this important era. Allowing the light of what we do know to conjure possible events, these books are a fun and informative journey into the wrinkles and folds of lost stories.

Numerous full-page text boxes expand on a variety of aspects of life and culture as we encounter them in the narrative.

CENTER FOR PASTOR THEOLOGIANS SERIES

The Center for Pastor Theologians (CPT) is an evangelical organization dedicated to assisting pastors in the study and written production of biblical and theological scholarship for the ecclesial renewal of theology and the theological renewal of the church.

The CPT believes that the contemporary bifurcation between the pastoral calling and theological formation has resulted in the loss of a distinctly ecclesial voice in contemporary theology. It seeks to resurrect this voice.

Led by the conviction that pastors can—indeed must—once again serve as the church’s most important theologians, it is the aim of the CPT to provide a context of theological engagement for those pastors who desire to make ongoing contributions to the wider theological and scholarly community for the renewal of both theology and the church.

Based on annual CPT conferences, the volumes in the Center for Pastor Theologians Series bring together the reflections of church leaders and academic theologians to consider how pastoral ministry and theological scholarship might be reconnected once again. The contributors consider several facets of the theme discussed at each conference, exploring the insights that can be gained from historical examples of pastor theologians as well as the essential truths from Scripture on the topic.

An adulterous woman repeatedly spurns the love of her youth, while her betrayed husband offers forgiveness and seeks to win her back.

With this bold and uncomfortable imagery, Hosea tells the story of God and his people. God calls the prophet to embody this divine suffering and redeeming forgiveness in his own marriage, thereby setting the stage for his message of God's faithful and enduring love, his righteous judgment, and his continuing offer of reconciliation and restoration.

This Tyndale commentary from Robin Routledge explores the historical, cultural, literary, and theological dimensions of the book of Hosea.

ROBIN ROUTLEDGE was formerly senior lecturer in Old Testament, director of research, and academic dean at Mattersey Hall, England. He is the author of Old Testament Introduction and Old Testament Theology and coeditor of As Long as the Earth Endures and Bible and Mission.

Nahum's prophecy of Nineveh's coming destruction. Habakkuk's probing dialogue with the Lord of Israel. Zephaniah's warning to Jerusalem's last great king.

In this Tyndale Old Testament commentary, the texts of these minor but important prophets receive a fresh analysis as S. D. Snyman considers each book's historical setting, structure, and literary features as well as important theological themes.

S. D. (FANIE) SNYMAN is research associate in Old and New Testament studies at the University of the Free State in Bloemfontein, South Africa. Known for his research on The Book of the Twelve, he is author of a commentary on Malachi, several books published in South Africa, and numerous articles.

TYNDALE COMMENTARIES

Tyndale Old Testament and New Testament Commentaries provide passage-by-passage interpretation to make the Bible's message plain to readers today. Written by some of the world's most distinguished evangelical scholars, these volumes offer clear, reliable, and relevant explanations of every book in the Bible.

INTRODUCTORY &gt;&gt;&gt;

"The Tyndale volumes have long been the premier shorter-length commentary series on both Testaments throughout the English-speaking world."

DYNAMICS OF CHRISTIAN WORSHIP

Worship of the triune God stands at the heart of the Christian life, so understanding the many dynamics of Christian worship—including prayer, reading the Bible, preaching, baptism, the Lord’s Supper, music, visual art, architecture, and more—is both a perennial and crucial issue for the church.

With that in mind, the Dynamics of Christian Worship (DCW) series seeks to enable Christians to grow in their understanding of the many aspects of Christian worship. By harvesting the fruits of biblical, theological, historical, practical, and liturgical scholarship and by drawing from a wide range of worshiping contexts and denominational backgrounds, the DCW series seeks to deepen both the theology and practice of Christian worship for the life of the church.

INTERMEDIATE ►►►

“Designing and leading Christian worship today is both exciting and challenging. It calls for multidimensional leadership. What could be more needed than a wide-ranging resource that joins theological reflection with effective practice for leaders in the pursuit of faithful worship? The Dynamics of Christian Worship series provides just such an invaluable, artful blend.”

CONSTANCE M. CHERRY
Indiana Wesleyan University

“In Christian worship, we have the great privilege of telling the world its true story, bringing it to the right worship of the only God who is ultimately true, good, and beautiful. The Christian life finds both its source and summit in worship. The Dynamics of Christian Worship Series promises to bring critical and fresh scholarship to the varied aspects and facets of worship that will inspire God’s people as they seek to know, love, and be reconciled to the triune God.”

The Old Testament commentaries of Derek Kidner (1913–2008) have been a standard for a generation, modeling conciseness, clarity, and insight. Those who read his books find in them the marks of both professor and pastor with his evenhanded scholarship as well as his devotional insight. These qualities have made his commentaries in the Tyndale Old Testament Commentary series and The Bible Speaks Today series some of the most beloved and popular of recent decades.

Knowing the honored place Kidner's work has had in the lives of so many students, teachers, lay people, and pastors, IVP is now proudly offering his commentary titles as part of the Kidner Classic Commentaries for future generations to read, absorb, and appreciate.

Kidner had a long career in both the church and the academy in England. He studied at Cambridge University and then served in the ministry for several years before becoming a senior tutor at Oak Hill Theological College. Kidner began his writing career while serving as warden of Tyndale House in Cambridge from 1964 to 1978, publishing his ninth and final book, The Message of Jeremiah, in 1987.

ANCIENT CHRISTIAN COMMENTARY ON SCRIPTURE COMPLETE PAPERBACK SET

INTERMEDIATE >>>

30 volumes, paperback, 978-0-8308-4335-0, $1500.00, W
(two boxes per complete set)

HIGHLIGHTS

- Now in paperback
- Complete twenty-nine volume set plus a commentary index and resources volume
- Fully redesigned covers
- Comes in a beautifully designed box

Now in paperback for the first time, this complete series from general editor Thomas C. Oden includes an additional companion volume featuring biographical sketches, a comprehensive timeline, master indexes of Scripture references and authors, and more.

The Ancient Christian Commentary on Scripture (ACCS) is a unique series encompassing all of Scripture and offering contemporary readers the opportunity to study for themselves the key writings of the early church fathers.

Arranged by the books of the Bible, each portion of commentary allows the living voices of the church in its formative centuries to speak as they engage the sacred pages of Scripture, rendered throughout the series in English in the ecumenically accepted Revised Standard Version of the Bible. Listen in as leading pastoral theologians of six centuries gather around the text of Scripture and offer their best theological, spiritual, and pastoral insights.

ANCIENT CHRISTIAN COMMENTARY ON SCRIPTURE COMPLETE HARDCOVER SET

"The conspectus of patristic exposition that this series offers has been badly needed for several centuries. . . . For the ongoing ecumenical conversation, and the accurate application of early Christian thought, and the current hermeneutical debate as well, the Ancient Christian Commentary will prove itself to be a really indispensable resource."

INTRODUCTIONS IN SEVEN SENTENCES

What if large topics such as philosophy, theology, and biblical studies could be boiled down to seven key sentences each?

The accessible primers in this collection act as brief introductions to an academic field, with simple organization: seven key sentences that give readers a bird's-eye view of the most pivotal truths on that subject. With engaging, thoughtful, and sometimes humorous language, these books invite readers to reflect on quotations that many have heard but perhaps have not explored in depth.

INTRODUCTORY ►►►

PRAISE FOR THE NEW TESTAMENT IN SEVEN SENTENCES

"To sum up the New Testament in seven sentences seems a daunting task. Gary Burge succeeds in doing so by engaging its story. He draws on seven central New Testament statements to retell the story of God's work in Christ. In the process, he widens the lens to show how the entire biblical story culminates in Jesus' person and work. It is an accessible and inviting book!"

JEANNINE BROWN
Bethel Seminary

"Gary Burge's aptly chosen seven sentences and words show clearly that the New Testament is not just a book full of doctrines, promises, or ethics, but has to be understood within the overarching grand narrative of the Bible as a whole. . . . However well you think you know your New Testament, this will help you see it through fresh eyes and gain many new insights in the process."

SPECTRUM MULTIVIEW BOOKS

Spectrum Multiview Books offer a range of viewpoints on academic topics about which Christians clearly disagree. The unique format, pioneered by IVP in 1977, gives proponents of major positions an opportunity to make their case. Each of the other contributors then offers a brief response, helping Christians think more carefully about what they believe and appreciate the perspectives of others.

LITTLE BOOKS

These brief books offer students an opportunity to sit down with accomplished scholars and learn of the challenges and thrills, and the promises and dreams, of pursuing an academic calling. Career scholars sum up their time-tested wisdom and pass it on to a new generation, empowering their imaginations and kindling the virtues they will need to prosper in the field.

INTRODUCTORY ►►

PRAISE FOR A LITTLE BOOK FOR NEW HISTORIANS

“This primer for new historians is full of Christian wisdom about the study of the past. Written by a seasoned veteran who has taught history majors for more than thirty years—in both secular and Christian academic institutions—it will instruct and transform you with profound historical thinking about the world in which we live and the people we should love.”

DOUGLAS A. SWEENEY
Trinity Evangelical Divinity School

PRAISE FOR A LITTLE BOOK FOR NEW PREACHERS

“New preachers (and those of us who’ve been at it a while!) will be encouraged by Matt Kim’s wisdom, challenged by his counsel, and moved by his vulnerability. An introduction not just to the preaching act but the preaching life.”

THE PROBLEM OF THE OLD TESTAMENT

DUANE A. GARRETT

Christians throughout church history have struggled with the Old Testament—defining it, interpreting it, and reconciling it with the New Testament. In this thorough, accessible work, Duane A. Garrett surveys three primary methods Christians have used to handle the Old Testament, offering a way forward that is faithful to the text and to the Christian faith.

408 pages, paperback, 978-0-8308-5273-4, $40.00

“HERE ARE YOUR GODS”

CHRISTOPHER J. H. WRIGHT

Christians desperately need to name and expose the modern-day false gods of prosperity, nationalism, and self-interest. Combining a biblical study of idolatry with practical discipleship, Old Testament scholar Christopher J. H. Wright calls readers to fight the temptation of idolatry as we consider connections between Old Testament patterns and today’s culture.

176 pages, paperback, 978-0-8308-5335-9, $18.00

CONSPICUOUS IN HIS ABSENCE

CHLOE T. SUN

In the biblical canon, two books lack any explicit reference to the name of God: Song of Songs and Esther. What is the nature of God as revealed in texts that don’t use his name? Exploring the often overlooked theological connections between these two Old Testament books, Chloe T. Sun takes on the challenges of God’s absence and explores how we think of God when he is perceived to be silent.

336 pages, paperback, 978-0-8308-5488-2, $34.00

REFUGE REIMAGINED

MARK R. GLANVILLE and LUKE GLANVILLE

Mark R. Glanville and Luke Glanville offer a new approach to compassion for displaced people: a biblical ethic of kinship. Challenging the fear-based ethic that often motivates Christian approaches, they demonstrate how this ethic is consistently conveyed throughout the Bible and can be practically embodied today.

272 pages, paperback, 978-0-8308-5381-6, $28.00

PLANTING A CHURCH WITHOUT LOSING YOUR SOUL

TIM MOREY

What does it take to be a church planter or ministry entrepreneur? According to veteran church planter Tim Morey, you need more than just vocational capacities—you need spiritual competencies. Featuring real-life stories from leaders plus practices and discussion questions, this book is a practical guide to spiritual formation geared to the unique needs of church planters and teams.

192 pages, paperback, 978-0-8308-5279-6, $22.00

READING WHILE BLACK

ESAU McCAULLEY

Reading Scripture from the perspective of Black church tradition can help us connect with a rich faith history and address the urgent issues of our times. Demonstrating an ongoing conversation between the collective Black experience and the Bible, New Testament scholar Esau McCaulley shares a personal and scholarly testament to the power and hope of Black biblical interpretation.

Christianity Today's 2021 Beautiful Orthodox Book of the Year!

ENHANCING CHRISTIAN LIFE

BRAD D. STRAWN and WARREN S. BROWN

It's time to rethink the Christian life in light of current research on the human mind, particularly with a deeper understanding of "extended cognition." Using insights from neuroscience, psychology, and philosophy, Brad Strawn and Warren Brown argue for a vision of the Christian life as extended into interactions with a local network of believers.

176 pages, paperback, 978-0-8308-5281-9, $21.00

THE UNIVERSE NEXT DOOR
(SIXTH EDITION)

JAMES W. SIRE

For more than forty years, The Universe Next Door has set the standard for an introduction to worldviews. This sixth edition uses James Sire's widely influential model of eight basic worldview questions to examine prominent worldviews that have shaped the Western world, critiquing each worldview within its own frame of reference and in comparison to others.

312 pages, paperback, 978-0-8308-4938-3, $32.00

WISDOM FROM BABYLON

GORDON T. SMITH

What does it mean to provide leadership for the church in an increasingly secular context? Analyzing the phenomenon of secularization in the West and charting common Christian responses, this indispensable resource from Gordon Smith discusses the competencies and capacities essential for cultivating distinctively Christian leadership today.

200 pages, paperback, 978-0-8308-5326-7, $25.00

GOD HAS CHOSEN

MARK R. LINDSAY

Throughout the church's history, Christians have sought to understand the doctrine of election. On this journey through the Bible and church history, theologian Mark Lindsay turns to the various articulations of the early church fathers, John Calvin's view, the subsequent debate between Calvinists and Arminians, and Karl Barth's modern reconception of the doctrine.

248 pages, paperback, 978-0-8308-5322-9, $30.00

RETRIEVING AUGUSTINE'S DOCTRINE OF CREATION

GAVIN ORTLUND

How might premodern exegesis of Genesis inform Christian debates about creation today? Pastor and theologian Gavin Ortlund retrieves Augustine's reading of Genesis 1–3 and considers how his premodern understanding of creation can help Christians today, shedding light on matters such as evolution, animal death, and the historical Adam and Eve.

264 pages, paperback, 978-0-8308-5324-3, $30.00

EXODUS OLD AND NEW

L. MICHAEL MORALES

With Israel's exodus out of Egypt, God established a pattern for the salvation of all his people—Israel and the nations—through Jesus Christ. In this ESBT volume, L. Michael Morales examines three redemption movements in Scripture: the exodus out of Egypt, the second exodus foretold by the prophets, and the new exodus accomplished by Jesus.
